Building an Outstanding Reading School: Meeting the Challenges of the 2014 National Curriculum

I would like to invite you to join me from 9.00am on 20th June to reflect on Building an Outstanding Reading School and Meeting the Challenges of the 2014 National Curriculum.

The session, sponsored by Oxford University Press and organised by Tudor Grange Academy, offers the opportunity to attend a free full day of professional development, looking in more detail at

- Outstanding Reading Schools
- Reading in the 2014 National Curriculum-Challenges and Opportunities
- Effective Strategies for Creating Lifelong Readers

Numbers will be limited to 60 delegates (max 2 delegates per school) so please book early with your name, school address and postcode, email address and position – please register by emailing teachingschool@solihull.tgacademy.org.uk (by 13th June 2018).

Thank you, I look forward to meeting you.

With Best Wishes

James Clements (Independent English adviser)

*There will be a non-profit charge of £5 made by the organiser to cover the cost of the venue and refreshments.

For ten years, James worked as a senior leader at an outstanding inner-city primary school. He was also a local authority Lead Teacher, leading training and supporting teaching and learning across a network of schools.

James now works as an independent English adviser, supporting schools and local authorities across the country to develop the teaching of reading, writing and drama. He is the founder of Shakespeare and More.com, a not-for-profit organisation that supports the teaching of English in primary schools.

James was consulted on the 2014 National Curriculum for English and is part of the DfE's English Expert Subject Group.
