

Chloe Hart

I am a sustainability activist and student. I worked at Pukka Herbs as a Sustainability Intern for the past 2 summers. My role at Pukka saw me undertake research into media communication and B Corp auditing. Currently, Pukka is sponsoring my Global Sustainability Masters at Exeter University and my dissertation will be researching the link between human health, herbal health and planetary health. Previously, I got a first-class BA Geography degree from Southampton. A key inspiration in my journey was the Catalyse Change bootcamp which I am still involved in today. In future I hope to work in sustainability consulting.
