

Lucía Tenorio

My name is Lucía, and I am from Madrid, Spain. I am a second year Sociology and Global Sustainable Development student at the University of Warwick. I am more focused in social sustainability, which includes tackling inequalities, including for example those in gender, education, economic, and health. That is why I chose to follow a sociological approach to my studies. I am also volunteering for Warwick Cup, a reusable cup sharing system to reduce environmental damage on campus and engage in environmentally friendly activities. I am particularly interested in studying unsustainable consumption patterns, gender inequalities and mental health.
